2027 marks 120th anniversary of the Isle of Man TT, an incredible milestone, which Goodwood will celebrate at all three of its headline events: 84th Members' Meeting presented by Audrain Motorsport (10-11 April), Festival of Speed (15-18 July) and Goodwood Revival presented by DUNLOP (18-20 September).

As the world's most famous motorcycle race, the Isle of Man TT has captivated generations of spectators since it began in 1907. Weaving its way through the public roads of the island, the event has provided a stage for legendary riders and iconic machines, shaping the world of two-wheeled competition.

Goodwood has a longstanding association with the Isle of Man TT, having welcomed many of the race's most celebrated riders and machines in recent years, including Michael Dunlop, John McGuinness, Peter Hickman and Davey Todd. The 2027 season will build on that relationship with a year-long celebration of the TT's 120th anniversary.

The celebrations will begin at the 84th Members' Meeting, showcasing the pinnacle of modern TT competition. A selection of 600cc and 1,000cc motorcycles will take to the Motor Circuit across the weekend, with six leading riders going head-to-head in a TT-style Shoot-Out on Saturday (600cc) and Sunday (1,000cc).

At Festival of Speed, the full story of the Isle of Man TT will be celebrated, as Goodwood gathers motorcycles and riders spanning the race's 120-year history, from pioneering machines to modern-day challengers. A dedicated TT batch will take to the Hill to showcase the historic and contemporary machinery, alongside a line-up of past and present riders.

The celebrations will conclude at Goodwood Revival, where the race's golden years will be celebrated through an extraordinary collection of period competition motorcycles and revered riders, who will also feature as part of the Barry Sheene Memorial Trophy grid.

Further details of the celebrations will be announced in the coming months, alongside additional information about Goodwood's 2027 motorsport events.
